

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a method and an arrangement, data are supplied by a firewall computing device to a further computing device when the firewall computing device can not process the utilized data protocol, and the further computing device takes over the functions of the firewall computing device during testing of the transmitted data pack and during performing the access readiness, wherein a data exchange is established from the further computing device again through the firewall computing device to a protected region, and an increased flexibility of the firewall operation is provided.